#first world BEAUTY PROBLEMS

It's not the end of the world, but some beauty stuff-ups are just so annoying we want to scream. Here's how to fix six of the worst.

1 You've stained your forehead with hair dye

FIX IT: You skipped the salon but now it's ended in disaster. Repent for your sins with something you've already got handy. "Apply moisturiser to the stained skin and let it soak for a few minutes, then try wiping the area with make-up remover," says make-up artist Rae Morris (raemorris.com).

Neutrogena Oil-Free Eye Make-up Remover, $10.89.

2 You accidentally put on way too much make-up

FIX IT: There's a fine line between the right amount of make-up and, "Oh God, what have I done?!" Instead of taking it all off to start over, Morris suggests buffing over the areas where you've caked it on with a soft foundation brush and some loose powder.

Revlon Nearly Naked Mineral Powder Foundation in Light, $25.95.

3 You've got red wine lips

FIX IT: Just like the dress that couldn't be saved by the dry cleaner, your lips can fall victim to the wrong kind of colour stain. "Load up your lips with lanolin or a greasy lip balm, as it's hard to remove colour from skin that's dry. Let the product soak in for a minute and wipe it off," says Morris. "If you can't get it all off, try a nude lipstick."

Lanolips Banana Balm 3-in-1 Lip Conditioner, $15.95.

4 You've dropped the ball teeth-wise

FIX IT: If your teeth are a few shades darker than they once were, swap your regular toothpaste for one that will help lift the stains, and opt for berry lipsticks.

1) White Glo Coffee & Tea Drinkers Formula, $5.49. 2) Rimmel Moisture Renew Lipstick in As You Want Victoria, $13.95.

5 You've had an allergic reaction

FIX IT: If you've tried a new product, only for your face to start swelling like Kanye's ego, take action before the irritation takes over. "Calamine stops stinging and calms redness," says Morris. "But first, it's important to remove whatever is that is causing your reaction." Ingredients like calendula and aloe vera also help soothe skin if you're on the sensitive end of the skin spectrum.

1) Jurlique Calendula Redness Rescue Calming Mist, $55. 2) Lush Catastrophe Cosmetic Fresh Face Mask, $16.95.

6 You went to bed with wet hair, now it's crazy '80s-style

FIX IT: The best thing you can do right now is mask your mistake. Blast your roots with a hairdryer to correct your part, and apply a smoothing product to tackle flyaways. Next time, blow-dry before bed, using a time-saving product like this one.

Bed Head by TIGI After Party, $32.95.
