

AUSTRALIA

HARPER'S BAZAAR

MARCH 2020

THE FASHION
ISSUE

ROSIE

HUNTINGTON-WHITELEY

"I've always wanted an unconventional life."

wild at heart

AN ODE TO WARRIOR WOMEN UNAFRAID
TO MAKE THE WORLD THEIR OWN

ghd Contour Professional Crimper, $169.

Michael Kors Collection.

Down the side

While centre-parts are still a safe and relevant choice, another compelling way to go is parted deep to one side.

Hairstylist Guido Palau triggered Diana Spencer nostalgia with sweeping side-parts and pastel hair combs at Tory Burch, while the Michael Kors show was a masterclass in how simply moving your part an inch to the left can bring a tough-girl edge to any look. While a sharp line helps, what matters more is that the hair pushed over is soft and shiny. Use a heat-protecting balm to hold barely-there waves, then, once hair cools, smooth over flyaways with a shine-boosting serum.

Tory Burch.

Krest Cleopatra 441 Tail Comb, $6.

Ouai Wave Spray, $43.

Dior Capture Totale DreamSkin 1-Minute Mask, $111.

Sies Marjan.

Clarins Beauty Flash Balm, $65.

Chanel Baume Essentiel Multi-Use Glow Stick, $71.

RMS Beauty Living Luminizer, $58.

J.W. Anderson.

Get the gloss

Don't blame the wellness industry entirely: the runway also has a longstanding obsession with looking lit from within. The good news is barely-there makeup textures have caught up, making polished skin one part skincare savvy and two parts makeup trickery. To that end, hydration is essential if you want skin to reflect light without the help of high-shimmer finishes. Opt for a serum or moisture mask, paying special attention to the undereye area and cheekbones. Next, transparent formulas that boost radiance without a hint of sparkle give skin that lit-from-within quality — especially handy for when there's no time to detox.