

MAR

3

PRODUCT REVIEW: POO-POURRI BEFORE-YOU-GO TOILET SPRAY FROM IGLAMOUR

I live in a house with three males. God help me. Ok, one is house- and toilet trained, one is toilet-training, and one still in nappies. - and well, especially no two has accidents as he tries to make to the toilet in time. And then there's the non-flushing. Ok, I admit, that's my fault as I've told him to leave it for now, as he tends to hold the button down, wasting litres upon litres of water. We'll get to that later. But all in all, it means that our toilet doesn't exactly smell all that great. But thankfully there's Poo-Pourri.

Yes, I thought my sink looked a little prettier than my toilet for the sake of this photo...

Yup, you read it correctly, Poo-Pourri. It is a Before-You-Go Toilet Spray that you spritz into the toilet bowl onto the water's surface before you go to o your thing.

As Poo Pourri puts it; "Nothing is worse than stinking up the toilet at work, or at a party, or your lover's apartment. Flushing removes the graphic evidence but what about that subtle scent of a 300-cow dairy farm? How do you make the world believe your poop doesn't stink? Poo-Pourri! Simply spritz Poo-Pourri in the bowl to create a film on the water's surface that actually traps the odours, so all those around you smell a refreshing bouquet of essential oils. Yes, it is a real product! And yes, it really works! Poo-Pourri, it's our business to make it smell like your business never happened." Hehehe, how funny is that.

The Beauty & Lifestyle Hunter

Poo-Pourri also says that they "care about your health, your toilet, and this precious world we poop in", and their products are therefore free from synthetic fragrance, parabens, phthalates, aerosols, or alcohol — "just ALL stink-fightin' good stuff (oh, and a pinch of magic)."

We put a few different versions to the test, including;

Call of the Wild - a mix blend of wild ruby red grapefruit essential oils

Original Citrus - a mix of lemon, bergamot, and lemongrass essential oils

Royal Flush - a mix of eucalyptus, and spearmint essential oils

Ship Happens - a mix of coconut, freesia, and citrus essential oils

Don't you just love names, just brilliant. As a lover of anything citrus scented, needless to say that I love the Original Citrus scent, but the Ship Happens is a close second.

The bottles may look small, but there's sufficient for about 100 uses, but they are also small enough to pop into the handbag, or keep in your drawer at work, but they are also available in larger sizes.

I really love the idea of these, as they really do work, making 'it' a more pleasant experience. But I also love fun way the brand has marketed these, their YouTube videos are worth checking out as they are hilarious. And the writing on the individual bottles is also so fun.. For instance one bottle says;

"There once was a diva named Britt, whose odour she'd rather omit. She spritzed the bowl, now she's in control, an she fiercely owns her own sit".

The bottles also have a clear indicator on the sides so you can see how much is left, and it for instance has the words "Stay in control. A true diva always keeps her fierce-tank full". And as the bottle is also recyclable it also says that " hope I come back as stilettos" LOL. But the writing on each bottle is different, and so fun. Definitely worth checking out.

Poo-Pourri - RRP: $15.95 / 59ml each

Available from iglamour

* Products have been kindly provided for consideration, and have reviewed in accordance with my Disclosure Policy.